Pain & Paper: the poetry of JFK Jazar F. Kahr

This amazing woman writes as a Black woman, not as an African American. She writes as a daughter, a sister, and a mother of many. Jazar has written this collection of poems cognizant of all Mothers seeking affirmation, and support after the loss of a child or children. In the midst of it all, this amazing mother fights for Lupus, a true activist who focuses on bullying, racism, brutality, family violence, and people as a whole. Weaving a tapestry of triumphant poems, Jazar draws the reader into the gritty world of the sudden loss her children, then embracing faith and evolution. Pain & Paper by Jazar F. Kahr shows an empowered resilient mother in the wake of poetic empowerment.
